

Nov 1 Mini-Camp: An Explosion of Art+Color

As a smile to the colorful Diwali festival of lights, our campers will experiment and make art with bright color, as well as engage in chemistry+art projects. All of the projects are designed to practice the skills of observation, testing hypotheses, color mixing, cause and effect, and multi-step processes – all in the target language!

Campers will mix colors in various ways and with various art materials. They will mix their own colors and then do a chemistry experiment in which the reaction itself mixes the colors for them!

Campers will of course play outdoors and do other physical activities to get them moving and breathing fresh air! And as always, they will engage in language-building and spoken fluency activities according to their level.

Key vocabulary and structures in French, Spanish, and Mandarin includes process language, sequencing language, comparison and contrast, cause and effect, and the specific language they will use while making their projects.

After camp, you will receive an info sheet / newsletter with pictures, vocabulary, and concepts they engaged with at camp!
